Excerpt: . . . a countenance pale as death, he, rushing in, astonished and alarmed and horrified us by throwing up his arms to heaven to exclaim, Tragedy upon tragedy! Finding the revolver, which had killed Miller, in the room beside the hody, he had brought it away with him in his pocket. Passing a gunsmiths shop in Leith Walk, he went in to have the pistol examined. He put the revolver into the shopmans hand; saw him look down one barrel after another; then, a loud explosion!--and the living man, without cry or sigh or groan, folded in two and dropped on the floor dead as a stone. Having satisfied ourselves, we published documents which satisfied the public that Hugh Millers reason had given way, and that he was in no respect responsible for the deed he had committed. Not far from the spot in St. Johns Free...
