Farmer's Suicides in India Impact on Women

By B. Ratana Kumari

Serials Publications, 2009. Hardcover. Book Condition: New. Thousands of farmers have committed suicides in India in general and Andhra Pradesh in past the years is known and seen by media, policy-makers, researchers, and social workers. Now a days, seeds, fertilizes and pesticide dealers are the centre of growing controversy in India and Andhra Pradesh, as they are new money lenders to a peasantry strapped for credit. In order to get rid of their financial crisis ill-treatment and harassment the money lenders, the poor farmers have committed suicides as there is nobody hear their last cry. For many in Andhar Pradesh's agrarian crisis, even death is not the end of the trouble. Instead it is the beginning of a new burden for the surviving women such as mothers, wives and daughters of the suicide committing framers. To begin with, they were doing the bulk of the work. Now they have to face the banks and the money landers. They have to bring up the children and send to schools. Raising and spending money the needs of the households becomes their job. And on top of it all, they have to run the farm. Sometimes, the pressure too much. In this struggle...
